

Christiane Hübner

Shibori

A new interpretation of traditional dyeing

Shibori

Traditionelles Färben neu interpretiert

Including photographs by Jean-Marie Engel.

144 p., hardcover, continuously coloured.

ISBN 987-3-7725-2743-2

All rights available

- Shibori - the new trend in the creative sector.
- Tradition and modernity combine in beautiful designs.
- Step by step instructions in words and pictures.

In this book, tradition and craftsmanship meet design and fantasy. The Japanese verb shiboru means to press, twist, squeeze. And what is created through this treatment of the cloth in combination with color - preferably indigo - is a fascinating world of patterns and forms. Designer Christiane Hübner makes sure that one is able to create beautiful products from the dyed fabrics, provides numerous ideas and explains the techniques in detail in words and pictures.

Christiane Hübner studied architecture and product design at the Bauhaus University Weimar and ran the joint design agency produktgruppe with her partner Matthias Becker for many years. Since her studies she has been dealing with Japan in the fields of architecture, design and traditional handicrafts and travelled the country to get inspired. In 2010, she founded the label renna deluxe, combining her passions for fabric and paper.

